Why is Such a Corporation Needed?

The freshwater fisheries resource is renewable and, with careful management, can contribute to sustainable development not only in Canada but around the world generally.

The responsibility for the conservation & management of Canada's freshwater fisheries is shared by the federal and provincial governments.

With large deficits and competing priorities, both levels of government, in recent years, have been unable to direct the required funding to the freshwater fisheries to ensure adequate protection for and enhancement of this valuable renewable resource.

How does Fish Futures Operate?

Fish Futures cooperates with federal and provincial governments and non-government organizations concerned with freshwater fisheries to increase public participation in achieving common objectives.

How is Fish Futures Funded?

Fish Futures receives donations from corporations, businesses and individuals, as well as grants from federal and provincial governments and other granting institutions. Fish Futures Inc. also sponsors fundraising endeavors such as the annual banquet and auction.

How is Fish Futures Organized?

Fish Futures is managed by a Board of Directors comprised of members of the general public as well as representatives of government, industry and the scientific community.

The Directors are elected by the members of Fish Futures in accordance with the corporation's by-laws.

The Directors are all volunteer workers.

Overhead and salary expenses are kept to a minimum to ensure that the majority of funds go directly to support our fishery projects.
